SNOW UPDATE

DATE: January 26, 2009

TIME: 12:00 PM

Significant snow fall began at about 08:30 AM and accumulated quickly in the western and northern parts of the city. By 10:30, we were seeing accumulations of up to 3".

This coincided exactly with the latest National Weather Service information, which predicted appreciable snowfall to end by noon.

Plowing operations have commenced. Flurries are expected to continue through early tomorrow morning. For sidewalk services, we are timing service in order to allow the last of the storm to pass, and have the sidewalks as clean as possible for the afternoon commute.

Temperatures will remain bitterly cold. We will be watching for ice build up. But as always, please notify us immediately of any problem areas. We have crews constantly on-call and patrolling our service area.

Thank you,
