SNOW UPDATE

DATE: October 28, 2009

TIME: 12:00 Noon

The storm set up pretty much as predicted, if not a little late. We were out all night monitoring and cleaning sidewalks and stairs. Snow did not begin to accumulate to plowable levels until this morning.

Plows and shovel crews are running at full strength.

Snow blowers are largely ineffective because of the wetness of the snow. Most of the work will have to be done by hand and with ATV's where possible.

The storm is expected to persist through Friday morning. I do not know if we can call it a blizzard yet, but with high winds in the forecast, it is a good bet that we are heading in that direction.

We have just mobilized our heavy equipment in anticipation of sustained heavy snow and wind. If we expect to use heavy loaders on your site, we will be calling you.

Thank you,
