Snow Update 12/19/2012 7:30 AM

We have been monitoring very light snow overnight. Accumulations began at about sunrise. Forecast is for 1"-3". For sites that have low accumulation specifications, we will do our best to time services for the afternoon rush hour.

For sites with higher accumulation specifications, snow will be falling all day. Wind and cold will continuously move the snow around. Foot and vehicle traffic will pack the snow and cause icy conditions. Please let us know if you would like service for accumulations below your specification. The remainder of the week will be sunny with temperatures in the 40's, and cold nights in the teens. This may cause melting and freezing. Unless your site has a specific clause for ice monitoring, we will not be providing service. Please let us know if you would like us to address icy conditions.

Thank you,
