SNOW UPDATE

DATE: December 23, 2009

TIME: 8:00 AM

The expected storm did not fully develop overnight. We were making our rounds throughout the AM hours watching for accumulations. We did some cleaning of exposed stairs and other sensitive areas. We will continue to monitor these areas.

We are going to try to delay services through the morning and time our first cleaning to be complete for the evening rush hour. We believe we can provide a safe environment, abide by the specifications of our contract agreements, and save our clients money by cleaning sites just once today.

Snow is expected overnight and into Thursday morning. We will be keeping an eye on accumulations. Since just light snowfall is expected, we will likely try to time services once again to keep snow removal costs to a minimum.

Wind is expected, causing some drifting. Long, slow accumulations tend to create ice buildup. Please notify us immediately if any dangerous conditions exist.

If you would like additional service, please give us a call anytime day or night: 303-638-8092

Thank you,
